NOW THE REAL BATTLE BEGINS

In its idealistic crusade to clear up the environment, the U.S. has spent more than $50 billion in the last five years, passed a host of anti-pollution laws and created an entirety new federal agency to enforce them. On balance, the results have been bitterly disappointing. In too many large cities the air is still not fit to breathe, and in too many parts of the country even the drinking water to contaminated. But perhaps most disconcerting of all univeronmentalism itself has become an increasingly be-seguened movement. Against that somber backdrop, his installment of the fractional Wildele Federation Environmental Quality brokes undertakes a 5-year aspectation of the conservation battle, beginning on the next page.

j. dimitroff takes part in a discussion lead by j. worsham.

human relations week was held from feb 18 to 21 with the combined efforts of the black affairs and religious life committees of union board, the purpose was to promote a greater understanding between men and women regardless of race.

a seminar on human sexuality was the first topic. don shaw, a noted speaker and a panel challenged the participants on their views of sex. roy innes, national director of core, congress on racial equality, spoke the following night. other topics of lecture and discussion included "interpersonal communications", "race relations on the college campus", and "counciling for women in relationship to men".

both the elmhurst college choir and the college's black choir presented special programs to conclude the week.

american film theatre ... bach's uncle ... collective paster display ... diverse movies ... evening with vincent price ... mark twain ...

these were just a few examples of the programming offered by this committiee of the union board under bruce bauch, under the new leadership of allen etheridge, c-i life arrived at the realistic approach that it would at best reach only a sizeable minority of the student body. this new premise allowed them to pursue a more esoteric and hence, a more expansive variety of programming, they attended a convention in houston, texas in an effort to get the first pick of the talents which would be appearing in the midwest during 1974-75.

the 7th annual midwest jazz festival at elmhurst college fell on the weekend of march 15, 16 and 17. due to the cancellation of the american college jazz festival that year, the elmhurst festival adopted a noncompetitive format. each of the participating groups were critiqued rather than merely competing against each other. instead of the big name judges that year the judges were teachers of music, namely rev. george wiskirshen, james a. coffin and john la porta. awards were presented to outstanding performers on wood wind, brass, percussion, composingarranging, the top vocalist and the allstar band.

new computer center

the old memorial library was renovated last year and this year to provide housing for the department of nursing and the new computer. With elmhurst as the computer center of the illinois board of governors, they must have worked the bugs out. The elmhurst college work is only part of the computer time which is run by robert reed. possibly with the more professional attitude, the computer mix-ups would be fewer.

intramurals, the major portion of athletic life, involved most of the student bodies in a sport of one form or another, the events of the year spanned from tennis and badminton for the individually-minded person, to softball, football, and volleyball for the group effort. teams could play for yearly points in all sports to win trophies at the end of the year, which were awarded at the spring banquet. squires, praetors, and g.d.i. had been contenders, the latter being the newcomer of a few years. this year, g.d.i. won firsts in football and volleyball. dave hajek was voted most valuable player in all intramurals. claymore eberle was chess champion, while rick mangnall and rich ng dominated in pingpong.

newspaper in second year

rebounding from last year's near death, the newspaper became a valuable source of information for the school. it was a bi-weekly which not only reported what happened, but informed people as to what was to happen, it offered services in the form of their summer jobs supplement and monthly calendar of events. ads from establishments in town spoke to the needs and wants of the students. they also had special issues like the lampoon issue which caught everyone by surprise. their continued success was hoped for. members included: george palmer, arlene kaspik, dan russo, charlie grippo, mike lo cicero, sharon sikora and all the committees and groups who submitted articles, cartoons, pictures and poems.

question: what sculpts with snow, deliberates over strategies of chess, discriminates gladly between boone's farm and chateauneuf-dupape, dispatches radio signals, all while breaking bread in some of the area's finest restaurants and humming musetta's waltz?

answer: any e. c. student who allowed himself to take advantage of the diverse activities sponsored by free university. carrying on its traditional epicurean club, wine-tasting seminar, and chess club, f. u. introduced a variety of new experiences to the campus, among these were a video-tape workshop supervised by dr. williams, radio club with dr. bohnert, snow-sculpting during interim, and seminars on death and dying organized by dr. schieler. the year also marked f. u.'s first annual opera seminars which culminated in excursions to two student performances. the group also showed it could perform services, with its c.a.r.e. hike.
